Conference

October 14-15, 2004

Capitol Plaza Hotel
Jefferson City, Missouri

What is Service Learning?

School-based service-learning combines meaningful service to the community with classroom studies in a way that improves student learning and strengthens the community. Students work in collaboration with community members, teachers, and classmates to meet real community needs, while applying core concepts from the regular classroom curriculum. Students develop responsibility and citizenship while increasing academic achievement.

History of Service Learning?

The National and Community Service Trust Act of 1993 created a new federal agency known as the Corporation for National Service. The Corporation's purpose is to provide funds, training, and assistance to states in order to develop and expand service opportunities for young people. A portion of this national legislation created the Learn and Serve America Program for state department of education to fund local schools that wish to implement Service-Learning.

The Missouri Department of Elementary and Secondary Education (DESE) has received federal dollars from the Corporation for National Service in order to administer the Missouri Service-Learning Grants Program. Approximately $282,200 has been awarded to Missouri's public schools for the 2004-2005 school year for local service-learning programs. Currently 28 school districts across the state receive Service-Learning Grants with over 31,000 students, 1,500 teachers in grades K-12 and 2,000 volunteers participating in projects.

What is the Missouri Service-Learning Fall Conference?

The Missouri Service-Learning Fall Conference is a gathering of Service-Learning Coordinators, Service-Learning participants, Community Based Organization Representatives, teachers involved in Service-Learning and others interested in Service-Learning. The conference will highlight Best Practices in the area of Service-Learning as well as give those persons who are new to Service-Learning an opportunity to learn more about the methodology of Service-Learning. There are roundtable discussions for all individual or groups participating in Service-Learning and a chance to highlight Outstanding efforts by individuals in the Service-Learning arena.

Who Should Attend?

- Service-Learning Coordinators
- Community Service Grant Coordinators
- Teachers participating in Service-Learning projects
- Students participating in Service-Learning projects
- Teachers interested in integrating Service-Learning into their District
- Community Based Organization Representatives
- General Public

Keynote Speaker

Cathryn Berger Kaye, M.A., a former classroom teacher and author of The Complete Guide to Service Learning, has been traveling the country for over 20 years to inspire and inform educators and youth about civic engagement. Now as a national service learning consultant, Cathy is an engaging and dynamic speaker and workshop leader. She works with state departments of education, university faculty and teacher education students, school districts, and K-12 teachers and administrators on a variety of issues including service learning, civic responsibility, student leadership, and respectful school communities. While Cathy lives in Los Angeles, she especially enjoys coming to Missouri to visit her sister Betty in St. Louis.

Project Hall:

We would like to highlight any and all Best Practices in the Service-Learning programs throughout the state. We will have one area designated for this purpose at the conference. If you wish to participate in this activity, please only one Project Display per District. Go to the Service-Learning website for more information.
